

LEGISLATURE'S
WORK CUT OUT

New Primary Bill Will Be the Measure Most Discussed This Session.

OTHER BUSINESS

Many Questions Which Will Need Careful Consideration, Are To Be Presented.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 2.—The primary election bill and the increase in railway taxation, through an ad valorem system, to be pushed through as soon as possible; the fight of the session to be made on the railway freight bill, through the establishment of a commission empowered to fix rates. This, it is stated by good authority, is the program of the administration men in the legislature. It is hardly expected that the freight rate bill will be passed at this session; in fact, it is said the reformers are perfectly willing to carry it over and make it the burning issue of the next campaign.

Rumors continue to circulate that a compromise has been or is about to be reached between the railroad people and the governor's friends on the taxation question. The amount the railway people are willing to have their tax increased is stated in these reports to reach in the aggregate $300,000. In view of the fact that both the governor's message and the report of the tax commission fix the additional amount the railroads should pay at about a million dollars, and give the figures to substantiate the claim, it may be well to be true that the railway people are willing to compromise at less than one-third of that amount. There is, however, considerable doubt whether the governor and his friends are willing to make such a compromise.

The course already taken with the primary bill gives evidence of the intention to push it to an early conclusion. Only one hearing was held by the assembly committee on privileges, six days after the Andrew and Fear bills were introduced, and on the day following the hearing the substitute bill was reported for passage, the committee remaining in session until 2 o'clock Friday morning, and meeting again at 8:30, before the session of the legislature, to get it in shape. At the hearing the views of Senator Merton, who introduced the democratic primary bill, and Assemblyman Bradford, a leading stalwart, were secured. Some of Senator Merton's ideas, notably that providing for the "nomination" of a United States senator at the primaries, were incorporated in the bill, but the suggestion of Mr. Bradford, that a provision be inserted limiting the expense of any candidate in securing a nomination to ten per cent. of the salary, was left out. Some of the members of the committee doubted the validity of such a provision, the proposition being to require an affidavit from the candidate that not only the money he had spent himself, but including that spent in his behalf, had not exceeded the ten per cent., before his name could be placed on the official election ballot.

One thing that may have hurried the committee some is the expectation that a primary bill will be offered in the senate next week by the stalwarts. The bill is not ready yet—in fact, there appears to be some uncertainty as to who will introduce it, and if the administration bill can be passed through the assembly and reach the upper house before the stalwart measure is introduced, it should be an easier road to travel.

The railway taxation bills are expected early next week. They were looked for this week, but for some reason their introduction has been delayed. As they will come from the state tax commission, through the committee on assessment and collection of taxes, they will of course provide for the taxation on the ad valorem, or property valuation system, of the railroads and like corporations. A bill will also be submitted making the tax commission a board of assessment to fix the value of the property. The railroad lobby has been very quiet thus far; in fact, none of its members have been seen around the legislature this week. There are no lobby headquarters at the Park hotel, as in days of old, and from an outside view, it looks as if the day of reform had really come.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 2.—Senator John M. Whitehead spoke yesterday afternoon in the university law building to the largest audience that has gathered this season for the Sunday afternoon meetings of the University Young Men's Christian association. He began by saying that student life is practically the same today as it was when he was a student. "No life of a student, he said, was much more free from trouble and temptation than the life beyond the university, and in the formative period of life special attention should be given to laying the foundations for a strong useful, Christian existence later in life. The fullest strength of manhood, he said, can only come through Christian living, and a Christian character can only be secured by Christian experience and a knowledge and study of Christianity. The students, he said can best repay the state for an education by becoming useful citizens."

KAISER'S AGENT
SENDS WARNING

Tells His Emperor That He Finds a Strong Anti-German Feeling in America.

MAY CALL A HALT

Washington Government Is Ready To Tell the Powers They Must Stop Short.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Baron Speck von Sternberg's inquiries and observations have caused him to pronounce in favor of Mr. Bowen's offer of a guarantee for the settling of the claims of all countries on an equal basis. He expects it may require some argument to convince his government to this as the best plan to follow, but he is hopeful of success.

He sent a long message to Berlin reporting the attitude of the United States government and the strong anti-German public sentiment, and advising acceptance of Mr. Bowen's terms.

To Call a Halt.
From his talks with the President and others the Baron learned that this government is getting ready sharply to call both Germany and Britain to a halt and an accounting if they do not change their course. He learned that while there is suspicion of both countries it is especially strong against Germany, because of the actions of German ships in going far beyond the plan presented to the State Department for the coercion of Venezuela.

Another indication that the allies are weakening in their demand for preferential treatment in the payment of their claims was given when it became known that a proposition involving the compromise of this contention had been submitted to the foreign offices of Great Britain, Germany and Italy by their representatives here.

May Effect Compromise.
The proposed compromise was suggested by one of the representatives of the allies here, and, while it has not formally received the endorsement of Minister Bowen, it is felt that he will not enter serious objection to its adoption, provided the United States and the other claimant nations outside the alliance can be convinced that their own interests in Venezuela will not be substantially injured by yielding to a plan which seems to offer a solution of the present serious hitch in the Washington negotiations.

Outline of Plan.
The plan suggested provides that for a short period, perhaps six months or a year, Great Britain, Germany, and Italy shall receive exclusively 30 per cent of the customs receipts of the ports of Puerto Cabello and La Guayra, and that at the end of this period, the exact length of which is yet open to decision, all claimant nations be placed on the same footing and the 30 per cent of the receipts of these two ports be divided among all the claimant nations in ratio based on the amount of each nation's claim. The plan is regarded as a compromise which will enable the allies to withdraw their ships from Venezuelan waters without a serious loss of prestige.

EMPLOYEES RECEIVE
SHARE OF PROFITS
Heavy Dividends Are Shared by Employees of the Baker Manufacturing Company of Evansville.

Evansville, Wis., Feb. 2.—The Baker Manufacturing company has adopted a system of profit sharing with its men which does not exist in any other plant in the state, giving them a share of the profits in the year's business, after a sum has been set aside for dividends, deterioration of the works, and sinking fund. The workmen received the largest per cent. of profit this year since the system has been in vogue, each man having two years service to his credit being given 93 1/2 per cent. of his year's earnings. Fifteen per cent. will be paid in cash and the remainder in stock, each share being worth $100 and paying an annual dividend of 5 per cent.

A workman whose wages amount to $600 for the year ending Feb. 1 will receive $501, $88.65 in cash and $402.35 stock.

The profits given the workmen in 1899 footed $2,129.38 cash and $12,078.02 stock; in 1900, $3,674.90 cash, and $20,824.41 stock; in 1901, $3,606.45 cash, and $20,776.15 stock; in 1902, $4,558.97 cash, and $25,607.48 stock. Some of the workmen disposed of their stock last year at a premium of $2 a share.

ARE BIDDEN TO REJOICE ALWAYS

EVERLASTING JOY IS POSSIBLE TO CHRISTIANS

EVEN IN TIMES OF SORROW

Rev. R. M. Vaughan Preaches an Able Sermon on the Words of Paul.

At the Baptist church Reverend Vaughan preached a most able sermon taking his text from the fifth chapter, sixteenth verse of the First Thessalonians: "Rejoice evermore."

If it were only possible, but while in every life there are seasons when joy seems appropriate, there are also other seasons apparently dedicated to sorrow. And when the billows of trouble go over us it seems almost mockery to bid us rejoice always.

Who were the people to whom these remarkable words were written? The little band of Christians in Thessalonica, a city of Macedonia so far from being the favored children of fortune they were for the most part abjectly poor. Many of them were slaves. They were at this very time subject to persecution, an islet in tumultuous seas of paganism. From Paul's letter we learn that some of them had been recently bereaved. They were standing beside newly made graves where loved ones were buried. And yet these people, poor, persecuted, and bereaved, were bidden to rejoice always.

The man who wrote the words had suffered the loss of all that men commonly hold dear. Friends, kindred, honors, fortune all had been thrown aside that he might serve Christ. Driven from city to city, stoned, shipwrecked, a scholar earning a meager subsistence by making tents, this is the man who writes out the fullness of his life: "Rejoice always."

What is joy? It is something different from happiness. The latter word comes from "hap" chance. Happiness is dependent upon what happens. It is the outcome of circumstances. If the weather is clear, our health good, our coffers full, then we are happy. But joy means a welling-up. Happiness is a pond dependent upon the rain fall. Joy is a spring gushing out from the exhaustless rivers at the heart of the earth. It is the up-welling of a deep, rich, full character. Its sources are not our circumstances, but ourselves. This is repetition in a human life of the joy of God. For entrance into the divine joy is not mere passport to a place, it is the attainment of a life that is deep and pure, a life rich in knowledge, holiness and spiritual culture.

Such a life is dependent upon circumstances. "Your joy no man can take from you." Some of the ancient cities had within themselves sufficient resources to defy all siege. Within their walls were copious springs of water and adequate arable lands. Like those cities a Christian has within himself abundant supplies. In medieval times wealthy Jews lived in houses outwardly squalid. But within there was all that could delight the soul. To be congratulated are they who amid loss and disaster find within themselves the sources of enjoyment.

This is the joy of Christ. While he loved friendship, beauty, abundance, love was not dependent upon them. "As the father hath life in himself so he hath given the Son to have life in himself." Jesus was not at the mercy of circumstances. In the depths of his own nature there were the streams which fed the fountains of joy. And it does not surprise us to hear him say on the last fatal night when the deep shadow of his cross was full upon him: "These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be full."

Persecution? We know but little about it. Perhaps if we smote evil harder it would strike back at us. But if it comes, ridicule, hatred, contumely, need our joy depart? Hear the word of Christ: "Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness' sake." So fully did his disciples enter into this beatitude that they rejoiced that they were found "worthy to suffer" for his name's sake.

Loss of property? It was George H. Stuart, president of the Christian Commission during the civil war, who lost all of his property in old age. A friend wrote to him: "The storm has swept all of your portable goods off the deck, but you have enough goods in the hold to make you a millionaire." And he replied: "I am the happiest man in the United States." Sickness? Certainly, our physical state deeply affects the emotions. It is said that no one dies a triumphant death whose ailment is below the belt. But even the man with digestive trouble, if he takes due account of the personal equation, can still be joyful.

Bereavement? No doubt our hearts ache. Yet the thought of the glory into which the departed has entered, the brevity of separation, all kindle in our souls a sacred joy. Death? It cannot quench a Christian's joy. When it seemed near to Paul, he exclaimed: "To die

A friend of the Home—A foe of the Trust

Calumet Baking Powder

Moderate in price—Makes purest food.

is gain." And Alfred Cooksey cried with exultation: "I'm sweeping through the gates washed in the blood of the lamb."

None of these things can destroy our joy. Up from the depths of our hope in Christ there ever arises a joy unspeakable and full of glory. Its possession is the secret of Christian power. The world wants joy. And the life that has it, is sought and emulated. Nehemiah spoke truly as he bade the people to be glad in God: "The joy of the Lord is your strength." We can have no higher ambition than to so abide in God, to attain lives so deep and Christ like, that our joy in kindled face and jubilant tone may commend us and our religion to all men.

ELOPER WHO HAS CAPTURED RECORD

George King Runs Away with Three Women in Two Days, and Deserts Them All.

George King of Brooklyn, Wis., is the champion eloper up-to-date. He is married but that doesn't interfere with George when he goes out for merry making. His record thus far was made last week when he eloped with three women in two days. The sheriff wants him.

It is charged that King, who is 27 years old, started on his relay elopement Sunday morning at Mount Hope, a little village in western Dane county, by running away with his brother's wife, a mere girl of 16 years. They left in a bob sled and went as far as De Forest, where King exchanged the sled for a light wagon, deserted the woman he had brought with him after taking, it is claimed, the $250 she had appropriated from her husband's purse, and left for Columbus with a woman of De Forest.

At Columbus the sheriff says that King left the De Forest woman and took up with a widow of that city and started for the woods, near Fall River. Since then he has not been seen.—Belvidere Daily Republican.

WOMAN'S HEAD ON POSTAGE STAMPS

First Time That This Has Ever Occurred in the History of the Department.

For the first time in the history of the United States a woman's likeness has been placed on a postage stamp. The new eight-cent issue bears the face of Martha Washington, and the womankind is post officially recognized. The supreme bench is also honored in the new issue, the portrait of John Marshall appearing on the $5 stamp.

There are quite a number of changes in the new issue and also a new stamp of the 13 cent denomination intended to cover postage and registry on foreign letters. The special delivery stamp is also changed a boy on a bicycle replacing the familiar messenger boy.

The entire series is more elaborate than the old and ornamented designs surround the portrait in each case. The general scheme is as follows. The two-cent stamp remains red only more vivid than formerly, one-cent, Franklin green; Four-cent, Grant, chocolate; five-cent, Lincoln, purple; eight-cent, Martha Washington, lilac; thirteen-cent, Benj. Harrison, light slate; fifteen-cent, Clay, olive; fifty-cent, Jefferson, orange; $1, Farragut, black; $2, Madison, light blue; $5, Marshall, dark green; 3, 6 and 10-cent (regular denominations have not yet been shown).

Long Flight of Albatross.
An albatross has been known to follow a ship for two months without ever being seen to alight.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville, Gazette, Feb. 2, 1863—General Hunter arrived at Port Royal on the 18th and the iron clads, Monitor and Passaic enter the harbor a day or two later. These two iron clads have demonstrated the seaworthiness of boats of this class and many more will be built now that it has been fully demonstrated that this special class is safe for ocean travel.

It is said that the government has ordered the recruiting of five thousand negroes. The first South Carolina regiment is now nearly mustered to its full force and the third Kansas is also nearly ready for service. General Hunter is much pleased over the results thus far obtained from negro soldiers and expects that they will be a great addition to our forces.

We have news from Richmond that the federal gunboat J. P. Smith has surrendered to the rebels at Stone River near Charlottesville. Inasmuch as the rebel account states that they had but one man wounded we disbelieve the whole story. The news from Galveston is not of the most encouraging nature. The fleet there have been endeavoring to reduce the fortifications without injuring the Harriet Lane which they intend to capture and the result was that the Harriet Lane escaped from the blockade and has joined the rest of the rebel fleet.

We hope that it is true that General Butler is to go back to New Orleans with increased power.

Stocks are dull and lower and gold has fallen a trifle.

lead hedgehog. It is a question whether Sir Arcot's Monax was able to see his shadow today or not. If he did then we are in for six weeks more of cold weather and high coal bills. If he did not then the backbone of winter is broken and we can look for an early spring.

Candlemas Day
Today is Candlemas Day. The celebration of the purification of the Virgin Mary, a day in which all the candles used in the Catholic church are blessed. To the early English this day was the commemoration of Ground Hog day. A day upon which the ignorant would surely tell whether winter was over or not. Should the ground hog awake from his sleep and come out of his burrow in search of food and see his shadow then winter would continue for six weeks more. Should the sun be clouded and no shadow be seen then winter was over.

Old Superstition
This is an old superstition and comes down to use from the middle ages and even farther back than that. In many places in England the country people watch this day most eagerly and make their calculations for an early or late spring according as to whether the day is cloudy or not.

Church Significance
In the Catholic church this day is commemorated by special services at which all the candles used on the altar of the Virgin Mary for the year are blessed by the officiating priest. The day owes its name to this custom although the month of February signifies purification, being taken from the Latin word februare. In old Roman days this month was the purification month of the Romans. On the fifteenth of the month the old heathen lighted candles in honor of Lupercale, in allusion of those used by Ceres in her search for Proserpine.

Bear a Symbol

In some countries the bear took the place of the ground hog and his advent from his winter sleep was watched most carefully by the natives of the colder countries. The following is a poem on the day:

Bruln, bruln,
You'll be a-ruin'
That you stuck your nose out,
Or your toes out,
From the cozy tavern
Of your cavern—
From the dim and dun light
Into the sunlight!
For there's your shadow;
See it, see it go
Down the meadow
And over the snow!
But while your cave is cozy,
It must get rather prosy,
This sleeping and this dreaming,
This life that's only seeming.
For visionary honey,
And visionary money,
We're not suin',
Eh, bruln, bruln?
And bruln, bruln,
We, too, are a-ruin'
That same shadow
Down there on the meadow!
We've had enough of housing—
Crouching by the ingle;
Out in the dingle
We'd like to be carousing;
Hearkening the jostle
Of the wren and thrush;
Just lazling,
Lustering and lazling,
Joying in our journey
Where the ways are ferny.

The statement that the President has interfered with the army of the Potomac so far as to prevent another attack upon Fredericksburg is now known to be true. The reason given is that the officers are disaffected and that the army can not be relied upon until these officers are removed both high and low. It is understood that General Hooker has the authority to do this.

JUDGESHIP LAW IS VERY FAULTY

Judge Halsey of Milwaukee, Says Circuit Court Judge Is Elected for Life.

According to Judge Halsey of Milwaukee, any circuit judge in Wisconsin who has been elected to office during the last four years, can hold his place for life if he so desires. Judge Dunwiddie comes under the ruling and according to the following reasons has a life job at present.

Since 1899 there has been no law limiting the terms of the circuit court judges. At that time a constitutional amendment was passed leaving the fixing of the judicial terms to the legislature. They had originally been fixed by the constitution at six years. The legislature that year and in 1901 failed to take any action, which leaves present judges without any limit to their terms. The attorney general, whose attention has been called to the omission, will draft a law fixing the term at six years, as they were under the constitution, and judges hereafter will be limited to that term.

MISS ADELAIDE THURSTON

"AT COZY CORNERS."

The story of Miss Adelaide Thurston's new play, "At Cozy Corners," by Pauline Phelps and Marion Short, is novel and ingenious and contains at least one genuine "thrill" to stir the pulses to an excitable pitch. It comes about in this way: Avis Merrill, known as "Claudia," the famous young violinist of the concert stage, has gone to Cozy Corners, a small town in the Congregationalist church of the village, Clyde Hollister, falls in love with, and marries her. Clyde's theological training has set his approval against "fiddling," and the young wife has to keep her precious violin silent in her home. Domestic troubles disturb the peace of the little household and Avis, to seek consolation from her old friend, takes the violin into the church at night, where she thinks no one will hear her. Her old manager comes to induce her to return to the concert stage. The husband too, missing Avis, looks for her in the church. He finds her there in the moonlight with her erstwhile manager. A stormy and passionate scene follows. Next to her husband, the dearest thing in Avis' life is her old violin. She offers it as a sacrifice on the altar of their love. Clyde accuses her of worshipping an idol of wood and destroys the violin by smashing it upon the railing of the pulpit. The happy ending of the pretty story is said to be worked out on the same unusual lines. There are a dozen village characters in the play to supply the humorous incidents and a quantity of special scenery is carried. Miss Thurston's gown is described as perfect specimens of modish beauty. The date of this engagement is Monday night, February 2nd, at the Myers Grand.

GAME LAWS AS THEY SHOULD BE

Marathon County Man Explains Some of the Fallacies of the Present Law.

The following letter was written by Mr. Rollins of Marathon Co., when the game laws were under discussion, two years ago. It is worth publishing:

"There is now pending before the legislature in the state several bills relating to hunting and fishing which have an important bearing on the welfare and interest of the state. By one of these bills it is proposed to impose a license fee of $1.00 upon the residents of the state, and $30.00 upon non-residents for the privilege of hunting deer. Under another bill it is proposed to impose a license fee of 50 cents upon residents and $25.00 upon non-residents for the privilege of hunting wild fowl and other game. That the passage of these bills will be detrimental to a large portion of the state is certain. A moment's consideration of the matter will convince any one that with the imposition of this license fee upon non-residents, who yearly come to Wisconsin in great numbers for the purpose of spending their vacations, will drive out of the state nearly all of this class of people prevent the spending of many hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. That there are thousands of hotels and boarding houses that depend largely on people outside of the state for the bulk of their patronage is well-known, in fact, the taking the money away from the state that would be spent by the non-residents would be a serious blow to many industries. Thousands of people earn large sums of money during the summer and fall by acting as guides, drivers, and in other capacities, for the fishermen and hunter. The farmer in many portions of the state derives quite an income from the small sums of money received from sportsmen who desire to hunt or fish on his premises. The merchant will be deprived of the selling of large quantities of goods; the livery stable man will not rent as many teams; in fact, all classes of trade will be affected.

The state of Wisconsin is magnificently located for summer resorts, and by long and untiring work of many of its citizens, has built up a magnificent business during the summer months. Years have been expended in this work, but it can be ruined in a day if the bills now before the legislature are passed. The many beautiful lakes in Wisconsin, whose shores are dotted with the cottages or camp of the tourist and sportsman, will, to a great extent, be deserted. Less people will find employment, less money will be paid out in every direction. The people in other states are making vigorous bids for the class of people who have in the past liberally patronized Wisconsin resorts, and if the non-resident is to be charged a license fee for the privilege of hunting or fishing, he will surely go elsewhere, and with him goes a large amount of money. It is fair to presume that probably a million and a half dollars are annually spent in Wisconsin by outsiders who go there for rest and recreation; that at least one-half of this, or perhaps two-thirds, will be driven away from the state is certain.

It is supposed these bills requiring license fees have been introduced for the benefit and welfare of the state, but instead of benefiting the state in any way it will be a detriment to a large portion of it. Instead of preserving and protecting the game, which should be the first consideration of the people of the state of Wisconsin, it will only lead to a greater destruction, and in time an utter extinction of the game in the state. It is a well-known fact that the more game and fish are taken out of season by the resident sportsmen than is taken during the entire open season each year by non-residents of the state. Every deer that is killed in Wisconsin costs the outside sportsman not less than $150.00; every duck at least $5.00, and other game in proportion; whereas the resident sportsman who is on the ground, knows the haunts of the game during the closed season, and can obtain a large price for whatever game he is able to ship out of the state, is continually slaughtering it at the very time it should be protected.

EACH PERSON IS HIS OWN MASTER

INDIVIDUAL IS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS DECISION.

MAN HAS POWER OF CHOICE

Rev. Henderson Denounces Custom of Laying Blame on Outside Influences.

At the Presbyterian church Rev. Henderson took for his sermon subject for his evening service: "The Individual and God, or an Appeal for Decision." He took his inspiration from Christ's words to Peter: "What is that to thee, follow thou me;" found in John 21:22.

During the service the boys' choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Hexford, sang two numbers and a solo by Richard Jones was another special feature of the musical program. The services held by the Christian Endeavor societies were well attended and the special exercises in commemoration of the founding of the order were most interesting. Mr. Henderson said of his subject:

Text: Christ's words to Peter: "What is that to thee; follow thou me." John 21:22.

These words are found in one of the most familiar passages of Scripture. I trust its familiarity will not rob it of its interest, but that this tender appeal of the Savior to his disciple will reach us. May the solemnity of that ancient scene beside the Sea of Galilee make this more impressive. May the personal directness of it make each forget others in his earnest solicitude for his own welfare.

We are too prone to bury our responsibility by placing ourselves in the midst of a mass of individuals and lose sight of our kinship, forget our seer and practically abdicate the throne which we have inherited as princes of the Kingdom of God. This we do by convincing ourselves that drops merge in a stream. As animals move in flocks and shoals, so we move in clubs, cliques and societies. Instead of ruling our own destiny we follow the beck and call of that impersonal unaccountable something called fashion or custom. It is the thing to do. Therefore, we do it, not that we would approve it. Far be it from us to do this or that without silent protest. It is not we that do it but custom and our environment. So the responsibility is shifted. While the real culprit walks in a vain show of innocence and unaccountability, Pilate washes his hands apparently forgetting that the blood loosed from them attaches with even greater adhesiveness to his soul. The Lord delivers us from merging our moral and spiritual interests with those whose opinions and acts we cannot in large measure control. Let us think and speak and act for ourselves in full consciousness of our personal accountability to God who sees and knows all about what we are and what to do.

I am fully aware how this habit may run to seed and become fruitful in fanatics and all sorts and conditions of disagreeable people. But I am sure we all know a person can live in the full exercise of his God-given personal right of choice and still be courteous and ever conscious of the essential personal rights of others. Christ whose courtesy was heavenly still never compromised his Lordship and Kingship. Though never forgetting to be kind he was none the less positive. He recognized Caesar's dues, but never allowed these to rob God of the returns due him. Oh for this Christlike balance; this perfect equipoise; this spiritual bearing in a material environment.

God has endowed man with the power of choice and He says, choose good, choose beauty of character; and the right and do it, seek truth and be it. And he graciously emphasizes this by gently laying His fatherly hand of approval upon the head of everyone answering such entreaties. When we do good, pursue beauty of character, we hear His approval. All the noise and din of the battle of life can not muffle our ears to His commendations. But says some one, is there not pleasure attached to what we are told God disapproves.

Does not the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eye and the pride of life bring returns of pleasure? Yes. But they are pleasures enfolded with cankers. They are sweets with poisonous ingredients. Such "Pleasures are like popples, spread.

We pluck the flower and the bloom is shed.
Or like snow-falls in the river,
A moment white, then melts forever.

At the dividing of the ways God stands in the person of Christ, saying to each individual as to Peter: "Follow thou me." It is the way of truth, honesty, purity. No one following that way has found it a disappointment but rather a constant satisfaction.

What following Christ means was shown by pointing what it meant to Peter. To him it meant taking up the lost thread of duty, going back to Jerusalem where he had denied His Master and engaging in prayer with the group of disciples.

It meant soon after speaking in Jerusalem the plain truth that was unwelcome to many who heard him. Yet in it all Peter grew stronger in virtue and manly in dependence. The sermon concluded with a personal appeal for all to decide to follow this light that had come into the world.

LAW DECISIONS

Benefit Associations—Husband and Wife

Where two persons were married and live together as husband and wife until his death, both mistakenly supposing that she was divorced from her former husband, she is entitled to the proceeds of an insurance policy designating her as his wife and beneficiary, although the by-laws of the association provide that no certificate shall be made payable to one not a wife, husband, child, dependent, etc., of the member. 92 Northwestern Rep. (Michigan, Judge Grant) 770.

Agent's Commission—When Earned

An executor of an estate, representing that he had authority to mortgage certain property, offered an agent a certain commission to secure a loan. The agent produced a person able and willing to make the loan, but who afterwards declined to make it solely on the ground that the executor's want of authority to execute the mortgage. In an action by the agent against the executor, it was held that he was entitled to the full amount of the commission agreed upon. 71 Northwestern Rep. (Missouri, Judge Bland) 98.

Dry Dock Not a Ship
An interesting decision was handed down this week by United States District Judge Edward B. Thomas, in Brooklyn, N. Y., in the case of Martin J. Garvey against the steamship Warfield. Plaintiff alleged the ship because of injuries which he had sustained by falling through a hatchway of the vessel while she was in the dry dock for repairs. Judge Thomas has dismissed the case for the reason, he holds, that the admiralty court has no jurisdiction in the matter. This decision is noteworthy, and establishes a point that has never before been presented to the courts for settlement. It is held by Judge Thomas that, being on dry dock, the steamship was not on navigable waters, nor was the dry dock, which rested upon the water and not upon the water's bed, a vessel in any sense, but was a part of the land itself.

Divorce—Child Born After Decree

A Missouri statute provides that the court granting a divorce shall make proper orders touching the maintenance of the wife and of the children, and may open the decree as to maintenance. A husband was granted a divorce from his wife, and subsequently a child was born of the marriage, for whose support no provision had been made in the decree of divorce. Held, that the court had authority, on petition of the former wife being made therefor, to make a provision for the care and custody of such child, by modifying the original decree. 71 Northwestern Rep. (Missouri, Judge Broadbent) 104.

Murder—Self-Defense

A person, who when assailed, is in a place where he is lawfully entitled to be, is not bound to retreat before exercising his right of self-defense.

A person may resist a public whipping, and, if his physical inferiority to the assailant prevents a resistance, he may use a weapon with which to defend himself.

More slanderous words of a person's brother do not justify such person in assailing the slanderer. 71 Northwestern Rep. (Missouri, Judge Sherwood) 148.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Fair tonight and colder; rain or snow Tuesday.

EXPORTS INCREASE

Exports of manufactures show a marked increase in the calendar year 1902 as compared with 1901. The total value of the 1902 exports of manufactures, as shown by the figures of the Treasury Bureau of Statistics, is $110,650,967, against $395,44,030 in 1901, an increase of 15 1/2 million dollars. Nearly all the important manufactures entering into our export trade show an increase, the chief exceptions being iron and steel and refined mineral oil. Iron and steel manufactures show a decrease of over 4 1/2 million dollars and mineral oils a reduction of 4 millions. Copper manufactures show the largest gain, 12 millions. The largest gain is in cotton manufactures, which show an increase of over 7 millions. This increase in cotton goods is chiefly in clothes sent to China, the total exports of cotton cloths to China in 1902 having been 226 million yards, against 201 million yards in 1901, the value in 1902 being $16,018,455, against $10,224,215 in 1901. Agricultural implements show an increase of over a million dollars; books, maps, etc., nearly a million; manufactures of fibers, nearly a million; leather and manufactures thereof, 1 1/2 millions; manufactures of wood, over 1 million; while woolen goods, paints, paraffin, jewelry, India rubber goods, glass, gunpowder and other explosives also show increases in greater or less degree. The chief articles showing a decrease are manufactures of brass, chemicals, clocks and watches, musical instruments, paper, spirits, wines and liquors and, as already indicated, mineral oils and iron and steel, the reduction in all of these except mineral oils and iron and steel being very slight.

The chief reduction in exports during the year is in agricultural products, which show a decrease of 120 million dollars, of which 80 millions' value is in breadstuffs; 24 millions in provisions; 19 millions, animals, and ten millions cotton; while tobacco shows an increase of about 8 millions and fruits and nuts an increase of about seven millions. This increase of seven millions in the exportation of fruits is chiefly to the United Kingdom, showing an increase of nearly 5 millions; and to France and Germany each showing an increase of over a million dollars. The only other great class showing a decrease is products of the mines, in which there is a reduction of about 4 million dollars, due to the falling off in coal exportations, which amounted to only 18 million dollars, as against 22 millions in 1901.

DECIDEDLY BAD TASTE

There is such a thing as professional courtesy even among newspapers of the better sort. The governor's private organ seems to have forgotten this fact and continually insists in rubbing it in as it were on the conservative element of the republican party every chance they have. The organ should remember that it does not represent the entire republican party of the state and that there are some men, who are so much greater than their petty minds can appreciate, against whom such attacks as they are continually directed that is most displeasing to the public at large. They may please a few men who fought Senator Spooner's return to the senate to the bitter end but to the old line republican wheel horse who has stood by his party in days gone by and who took occasion to rejoice in the senator's election they are not displeasing. Men who sat most uneasily in their seats at the assembly on Wednesday last and gritted their teeth and muttered under their breath when they saw how much Senator Spooner less rejoice in the bitter remarks of less rejoice to the bitter remarks of the organ. The republican party will live long after the organ and the use it was designed for are passed into the background. The republican party was founded long, long ago on the principles that the majority of Wisconsin citizens have shown their approval of in many an election and the fact that one element of the party is now in the ascendancy is no just cause for the abuse and vile attempt to drive out of the party men who have been in it from their first vote by unjust criticism and vile slander. Professional courtesy extends to many of those who have in the past few weeks seen their names bandied on the editorial page of the organ in a manner far from pleasing to their friends. Republicans rejoiced in Senator Spooner's election and justly so. They had gained what they had contended for two years against the greatest difficulties. That they came to Madison to do honor to the man they reverse was not surprising and that they did show their love and appreciation for him was taken for granted. Why then should the organ see fit to besmirch the fair name of Wisconsin republicanism with mud and slime by their hateful hints and more than hateful slurs? It not only shows bad form, but also bad taste.

EDUCATIONAL INFLUENCE

The strange sight of an instructor of the state university being implicated in a scandal which brings the low side of life, gambling and drinking, to the front is indeed a warning to the youth of tomorrow who intend to enter an institution of learning with the idea of becoming good and pure men through contact with good books and good elements. That such a blotch should have fallen to the lot of Wisconsin is a sad one to comment upon but now it has come we should face it as men and do all in our power to eradicate such mistakes in the future. There are men at the university who have never tasted liquor and who have never seen a game of chance. These men are called "moss backs" by the rising generation but it would be better if we had more "moss backs" and fewer of the new school if like occurrences are to disturb our state institution.

STATEHOOD BILL

Now will come the tug of war when Quay and the senate really get down to cases on that statehood measure. It will be lively to say the least and as Brother Quay seems to hold a sort of controlling element in the republican ranks of the senate with his sixteen senators it is probable that the fight will be fast and furious. Quay is a fighter and rather than see his pet measures beaten he is liable to block all legislation of any kind whatsoever. On the other hand Senator Beveridge also has the reputation for doing something in the fighting line and between these two men arrayed against each other some reading news may be had for the general public in the week to come.

More disasters through naval maneuvers in the eastern waters caused by the bigger boats running down the smaller through mistaken orders. France and England are both sufferers this time and both will lose valuable boats and more valuable lives through carelessness.

Coal operators who sold their coal at contract prices even when they could have made more by charging market prices are not heard of this winter although they existed. It is not the good men who get noticed but the bad ones.

Wait until Quay and Beveridge get together. Why that fight between "Bad Bill Bailey" and Beveridge won't be in it. Tillman will look like two cents and all the other senators will have a chance to enjoy the situation as best they can.

Women are after their sisters who wear song birds on their hats. Doubtless these self same women whip their poor children and neglect their husband's comfort so they may devote time to the erring sister who dares to wear song birds.

This life is full of ups and downs, said the man as he went up with a powder mill. Principally downs, said the man who falling having made his ascension earlier in the day.

Split a crow's tongue and he will talk. Some people's tongues evidently have been split way down the whole length from the amount of talk that the organ indulges in.

Now that Uncle Sam has really become aroused with Germany may be told to take its toy ships right home. When Uncle Sam once gets waked up then look out.

Chicago sold coal on Saturday to its poor at one-half the rate charged by dealers and they sold a lot of it, too.

Congress will have its hands full in the few days to come with one thing or another that will keep their minds off the coal situation.

Perhaps Roosevelt wants to stave off open trouble with Germany until he can be free to take a hand in the fight himself.

PRESS COMMENT

Chippewa Herald: Between the men who want their names in the papers and those who don't, the average editor is kept jumping sideways.

Racine Journal: Speaker Lenroot has it within his power to reap the encomiums of the people or he can pursue a different course that may now cause friction and trouble.

Racine Journal: There is no fault finding over the organization of the legislature. The people want harmony and a mutual toleration by legislators of the opinion of each other.

Green Bay Gazette: If the worst should come, we would probably find all the South American republics fighting by our side and they represent a force by no means impotent.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The announcement that Nils P. Haugen was unable to concur in the opinion of his colleagues on the tax commission merely strengthens the belief in the soundness of the conclusions reported by Judge Gilson and George Curtis Jr.

Menasha Breeze: If the experiment of other places is to be taken as a criterion, the jealousy existing between Menasha and Neenah will be outlived and forgotten much sooner with the two cities' one than with them two. There is everything to be gained in union, nothing in separation and so long as there are two towns are peacelovers and that half-century-old feud will live. The ancients used to settle their national troubles by individual inter-marriage. Why not try cooperative inter-marriage for this individual jealousy?

La Crosse Press: The primary election bills were said to be compromising, but the stalwarts fail to understand the compromise by which they sacrifice everything. And the public, which is not greatly concerned whether the stalwart leaders are satisfied or not, is apparently taking little interest either way.

Eau Claire Telegram: We have come to believe that a newspaper man is equal to almost any emergency, but that of preaching when lo and behold! R. F. Howard, one of the most widely known and experienced newspaper men of Milwaukee, has demonstrated the fact that the twentieth century newspaper man can acceptably fill a pulpit.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: Commenting on the fact that the bullion value of the Mexican dollar is down to 40 cents, the Bankers' Magazine makes this disrespected reference to silver: "At 50 cents an ounce, it is worth $8 a pound, and this price as yet precludes its use for trolley wire, even if it were a better conductor of electricity." But the times have gone by when silver and copper had a standing as precious metals.

Fond du Lac Reporter: The county superintendents of schools in their convention at Madison last week discussed the advisability of teaching agriculture in the common schools and decided that it would be advisable to teach the science of farming to as great an extent as possible. Farming is now a science that requires careful study on the part of the man who wishes to make a success of it, and it is eminently proper that the rudiments at least should be taught in the common schools. This is especially true of the country schools where the pupils are the children of farmers.

TURKEY A LA PURITAINE.

A Novel Way of Preparing the Bird For His Doom.

Ancient the subject of turkeys, one of the dealers in the great national feast bird asked a reporter, says the Florida Times-Union, if he knew how to prepare and cook a turkey properly. The scribbler confessed ignorance.

"Get you a half pint of good old whisky."

"What's that got to do with the preparation of a turkey?"

"Everything. Saturate enough corn in the whisky to soak up all the spirits. Feed that to your gobbler. The old fellow will like it. First thing you know he feels his oats, or, more properly, his corn. He will spread his tail to the breeze, trail his wings on the ground and map off circles under the impression that he owns the earth and in the boss of everything on it. He will fluff up his feathers, wrinkle his neck and look intensely serious, all the while splitting the atmosphere into small chunks. By and by the old boy gets to staggering, his gobbling is more frequent, but less coherent, he gives a lurch backward and another forward, jabs his bill in the ground, reels and falls.

"Now for the ax. His head is off; he is bled and hung up for twenty-four hours in a cool place. Make your stuffing to suit your own taste. Put him in the baking pan breast downward. Only idiots cook fowls breast up. You want all the succulent juices to run into the breast. A juicy breast is the perfection of cooking. He comes to the table smoking hot and breathing an aroma like 'zephyrs which have soughed through gardens of roses and fields of ripe corn. Then lay to."

"Yes," commented the reporter, "but the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would be horror struck."

"Not at all. The bird has got to die, so let him die happy."

"How about the very good people?"

"Why, bless your soul, man, that way of cooking a turkey is an invention of the Puritans!"

SPOILED HIS DINNER.

An Unpleasant Thanksgiving Day For a Politician.

"Bluest Thanksgiving I ever spent?" mused the fine old gentleman who has an unconquerable antipathy to practical politics. "It stands out in my memory like an obelisk on a plain, and it was not so very long ago, either."

"I had been induced that fall to run for an important public office. It was done against my better judgment and under great pressure, but when a man enters such a fight he wants to win. I was in a close district and determined to put up the very best fight that the circumstances would permit. I advertised at once for an extra stenographer, and from the many who responded selected a beautiful, bright and dashing young woman who justified my immediate faith in her ability. She did all my private correspondence, knew as much about the inside of the campaign as I did, worked day and night with a willingness that was surprising, and even took from one of my shrewdest advisers the list of voters in the strongest section with which I had to contend, with full instructions as to how the most influential persons among them could be won to my cause. It was great work, and yet I fell several hundred short of the normal party vote."

"My successful opponent lived in a neighboring town, and graciously invited me to be his guest on the following Thanksgiving. It would have looked badly to refuse, and I went. It was really an admirable social function, but the few hours I put in there were torture. The host met me with a hearty handshake. Turning, he said, 'My wife! Resplendent in satin and jewels, I saw my stenographer. 'Love and war,' she murmured. 'He thinks I was visiting my old home in New England.' I held my peace, but that fattened turkey tasted like cork."—Detroit Free Press.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING.

A Contemporary Account of the Pioneer Feast in 1621.

The first Thanksgiving day was celebrated in the autumn of 1621.

An account of the pioneer of all these feasts has been presented in a letter by Edward Winslow written in the same year:

"You shall understand that in this little time that few of us have been here we have built seven dwelling houses and four for the use of the plantation and have made preparations for eleven others. We set the last spring some twenty acres of corn and sowed some six acres of barley and peas. Our corn did prove well, God be praised, and our barley indifferent good. Our harvest being got in, our governor sent four men out fowling, so that we might after a special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the whole company almost a week, at which time among other recreations we exercised our arms, many of the Indians arriving among us, and among the rest their greatest king, Massasoit, with ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted. And, although it be not always so plentiful as it was at this time with us, yet, by the goodness of God, we are so far from want that we often wish you partakers of our plenty."

Thus Thanksgiving was born. It continued to be celebrated, though not with any regularity, for about sixty years, after which it was annually ordered by the general court, not always in November, but generally after the harvests were gathered.

REV. WOODSIDE'S MEMORY HONORED

FIRST M. E. CHURCH MOURNS IT
FORMER PASTOR.

SPECIAL SERVICES ON SUNDAY

Church Was Draped in Black, and Eloquent Tributes Paid the Dead.

Memorial services for the late Rev. W. Woodside were held Sunday morning at the First M. E. church where the deceased clergyman did some of his most efficient work. The First church never had a pastor who was more devotedly loved by the entire congregation than was Rev. Woodside and Sunday's service was an eloquent testimonial of the deep affection with which his memory is cherished by many friends in Janesville.

Special Service
The church was appropriately draped with black a large portrait of Rev. Woodside being placed conspicuously among the somber drapings. Beautiful narcissuses and tulips decorated the pulpit stand. The service itself was beautiful and impressive. For the text of his memorial sermon, Rev. W. W. Warner chose the words, "Abel being dead, yet speaketh." Rev. Warner spoke beautifully of the personality of Rev. Woodside and of the manner in which it lives on even though he passed away. Rev. Warner and Rev. Woodside had been associated in evangelistic work for many years and personal reminiscences of the deceased clergyman were given by his friend and fellow laborer.

Special music also added to the impressiveness of the service. The large chorus choir sang "The Place Prepared" and "The Far Away Home" and after the sermon by special request, Mrs. Warner sang, "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" This song was one of Rev. Woodside's favorites and two days before his death he called his wife to his bedside and at his request they sang the selection together.

Resolutions Adopted
Resolutions of regret and sympathy were also adopted by the church. Rev. Warner attended the funeral services for Rev. Woodside which were held from the First M. E. church at Oshkosh, Friday afternoon. Many of the Methodist pastors of the state were present and several of them assisted Presiding Elder D. C. John in the service. Among those who assisted was the Rev. Frank A. Pease of Wausau, formerly presiding elder of the Janesville district, who read a memoir of the life of the deceased. The interment was in Neenah. Among all the wealth of floral offerings, the most pretentious were those sent by the First church of this city and by its individual members.

A Power For Good
The news of Rev. Woodside's death was received with sincere sorrow throughout this city for during his pastorate here the uplifting influence of his genial personality and kindly Christian spirit was felt far beyond the confines of his own church. One year ago last fall he was removed from this city and made presiding elder of the Oshkosh district. At the last meeting of the conference he was relieved of active duties owing to ill health, his salary continuing. It was thought that a year's rest would restore him to health but he failed steadily in spite of the best medical care. He was one of the most forceful preachers and untiring laborers in the Methodist church of Wisconsin. His life was a constant influence for good and it is surely true of him that "being dead, he yet speaketh."

LAIRD GOES TO MONROE TODAY

Man Accused of Theft, Arrested at the Grand, Is Sent to Monroe for Examination.

E. E. Laird of Chicago was taken into custody at the Grand Hotel Saturday night by Chief Hogan on the charge of robbing W. G. Ferguson of Madison of between sixty-five and seventy dollars. According to Mr. Ferguson's story the theft was committed at the Ludlow house at Monroe on Friday night, while he was sitting in the hotel office.

It seems that Ferguson was at a table writing and had occasion to take out his pocket book, containing the money and about a thousand dollars in drafts, from his hip pocket. After using it, he put it back in his pocket and thinks that in moving around in his chair that it worked out and fell on the floor or the seat of the chair.

After mailing his letter Ferguson went up to his room and after a short time started to retire, and then missed his pocket book. He at once went down to the office but could find no trace of the missing book. While he was in the office, two traveling men, both acquaintances of his, were sitting near him and he supposed they had taken the pocket book as a joke, but he was assured by them that they had not seen it. Laird had also been in the office, but for some reason he was overlooked. He is engaged in getting up church directories and had been here at the Grand hotel in this city for a few days and went to Monroe on Friday.

Saturday morning Ferguson came to Janesville and shortly after he arrived here, Landford Christensen of the Ludlow (telephone) firm that they had found his pocket book with the drafts in the rear of the hotel, but the money was gone. Christensen also came to Janesville and Saturday evening they located Laird at the Grand. Chief Hogan was found and Laird was arrested just as he was about to settle his bill and leave the city. He claimed he was innocent of the charge, but the chief took him to the lock-up for safe keeping.

Taken To Monroe
Marshal Blunt of Monroe arrived in the city this morning with a warrant for Laird and took him back to that city at 10:40 for examination. Evidently Laird has been in trouble before as he told Chief Hogan this morning that he was arrested in Chicago for obtaining money under false pretenses and spent thirty days in Cook County jail, but was finally discharged for lack of evidence.

Had No Money
When Laird left Janesville for Monroe he was owing the Grand for his board but left his baggage as security. He had done some work at Monroe but had not collected any money. Friday night he telephoned E. E. Jackman who was with him that he would be in Janesville on Saturday and that he had made a raise of between sixty-five and seventy dollars.

SEEK QUARTERS

Plan to Have a Lodge Room Open at All Times to Members and Visiting Elks.

At a meeting of Janesville lodge, No. 254, B. P. O. E., held last week a committee consisting of Tom Nolan, Louis Levy and J. C. Ulrich was appointed by the Exalted Ruler A. L. McIntosh, to take steps toward securing new lodge rooms and reading rooms. The committee have several locations under consideration among them being the old municipal court rooms on the bridge. REV. WOODSIDE'S MEMORY HONORED

FIRST M. E. CHURCH MOURNS IT
FORMER PASTOR.

SPECIAL SERVICES ON SUNDAY

Church Was Draped in Black, and Eloquent Tributes Paid the Dead.

Memorial services for the late Rev. W. Woodside were held Sunday morning at the First M. E. church where the deceased clergyman did some of his most efficient work. The First church never had a pastor who was more devotedly loved by the entire congregation than was Rev. Woodside and Sunday's service was an eloquent testimonial of the deep affection with which his memory is cherished by many friends in Janesville.

Special Service
The church was appropriately draped with black a large portrait of Rev. Woodside being placed conspicuously among the somber drapings. Beautiful narcissuses and tulips decorated the pulpit stand. The service itself was beautiful and impressive. For the text of his memorial sermon, Rev. W. W. Warner chose the words, "Abel being dead, yet speaketh." Rev. Warner spoke beautifully of the personality of Rev. Woodside and of the manner in which it lives on even though he passed away. Rev. Warner and Rev. Woodside had been associated in evangelistic work for many years and personal reminiscences of the deceased clergyman were given by his friend and fellow laborer.

Special music also added to the impressiveness of the service. The large chorus choir sang "The Place Prepared" and "The Far Away Home" and after the sermon by special request, Mrs. Warner sang, "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" This song was one of Rev. Woodside's favorites and two days before his death he called his wife to his bedside and at his request they sang the selection together.

Resolutions Adopted
Resolutions of regret and sympathy were also adopted by the church. Rev. Warner attended the funeral services for Rev. Woodside which were held from the First M. E. church at Oshkosh, Friday afternoon. Many of the Methodist pastors of the state were present and several of them assisted Presiding Elder D. C. John in the service. Among those who assisted was the Rev. Frank A. Pease of Wausau, formerly presiding elder of the Janesville district, who read a memoir of the life of the deceased. The interment was in Neenah. Among all the wealth of floral offerings, the most pretentious were those sent by the First church of this city and by its individual members.

A Power for Good
The news of Rev. Woodside's death was received with sincere sorrow throughout this city for during his pastorate here the uplifting influence of his genial personality and kindly Christian spirit was felt far beyond the confines of his own church. One year ago last fall he was removed from this city and made presiding elder of the Oshkosh district. At the last meeting of the conference he was relieved of active duties owing to ill health, his salary continuing. It was thought that a year's rest would restore him to health but he failed steadily in spite of the best medical care. He was one of the most forceful preachers and untiring laborers in the Methodist church of Wisconsin. His life was a constant influence for good and it is surely true of him that "being dead, he yet speaketh."

LAIRD GOES TO MONROE TODAY

Man Accused of Theft, Arrested at the Grand, Is Sent to Monroe for Examination.

E. E. Laird of Chicago was taken into custody at the Grand Hotel Saturday night by Chief Hogan on the charge of robbing W. G. Ferguson of Madison of between sixty-five and seventy dollars. According to Mr. Ferguson's story the theft was committed at the Ludlow house at Monroe on Friday night, while he was sitting in the hotel office.

It seems that Ferguson was at a table writing and had occasion to take out his pocket book, containing the money and about a thousand dollars in drafts, from his pocket. After using it, he put it back in his pocket and thinks that in moving around in his chair that it worked out and fell on the floor or the seat of the chair.

After mailing his letter Ferguson went up to his room and after a short time started to retire, and then missed his pocket book. He at once went down to the office but could find no trace of the missing book. While he was in the office, two traveling men, both acquaintances of his, were sitting near him and he supposed they had taken the pocket book as a joke, but he was assured by them that they had not seen it. Laird had also been in the office, but for some reason he was overlooked. He is engaged in getting up church directories and had been here at the Grand hotel in this city for several days and went to Monroe on Friday.

Saturday morning Ferguson came to Janesville and shortly after he arrived here, Landlord Christensen of the Ludlow house telephoned him that they had found his pocket book with the money was gone. Christensen also came to Janesville and Saturday evening they located Laird at the Grand. Chief Hogan was found and Laird was arrested just as he was about to settle his bill and leave the city. He claimed he was innocent of the charge, but the chief took him to the lock-up for safe keeping.

Taken To Monroe
Marshal Blunt of Monroe arrived in the city this morning with a warrant for Laird and took him back to that city at 10:40 for examination. Evidently Laird has been in trouble before as he told Chief Hogan this morning that he was arrested in Chicago for obtaining money under false pretenses and spent thirty days in Cook County jail, but was finally discharged for lack of evidence.

Had No Money
When Laird left Janesville for Monroe he was owing the Grand for his board but left his baggage as security. He had done some work at Monroe but had not collected any money. Friday night he telephoned E. E. Jackson who was with him that he would be in Janesville on Saturday and that he had made a raise of between sixty-five and seventy dollars.

THE DEADLY STONE WALL

(Copyright, 1902, by G. L. Kilmer.)

DEC. 11, 1862, dawned with the armies of Lee and Burnside on the opposite banks of the Rappahannock. A bridgeless and unfordable stream rolled between the hostile camps. Lee's guns frowned from Marye's hill, daring the Federals to attempt crossing the river into Fredericksburg. Burnside's cannon stood in grim rows on Falmouth heights, with their muzzles trained on the town and the south bank of the river. The situation was a deadlock. Burnside had marched his troops to the crossing place, expecting to pass over and march beyond on the road to Richmond before Lee became aware of his movements. But the pontoon boats for bridging the Rappahannock had not arrived at the date fixed, and, although the troops were ready, they could not cross.

While the Federals waited for boats the Confederates massed men and guns on the heights back of the town. Only a handful of men, Burksdale's Mississippians, were stationed at the river bank to dispute the crossing of the enemy. The Mississippians, known as "Hornets," took cover in and around the houses and played havoc with the workmen who attempted to lay pontoon bridges. All day the 11th the engineers and pontooners labored in vain to lay the bridge. Even showers of Federal shells could not dislodge the Mississippians.

At the close of the day a forlorn hope composed of three Federal regiments marched down to the river under fire and embarked in boats, which were poled across in the teeth of the "Hornets." After a lively battle in the streets the Mississippians were pushed back out of sight of the bridge builders. During the night three bridges were laid, and the right wing of Burnside's army under General Sumner crossed into the town. It was believed that Lee only made a feint at stopping the enemy from crossing, for the advantage in a battle for him would be to have Burnside on the south bank under his guns on the heights. Meanwhile the left wing of the Federal army under General Franklin had crossed a few miles below the town, and on the 12th Burnside gave his orders for a desperate attack by both wings on the 13th.

Lee's marshals were all in the field, Longstreet on the heights confronting Sumner and Jackson defending the Richmond road against Franklin. Franklin's attack was gallantly made by General Meade's troops, and for a moment Jackson's line was broken. But the gap was closed by the heroic fighting of Jackson's men. On the right, French's division, led by Kimball's brigade, made a dash from the town through the suburbs to the base of the hill where Lee's troops lay. After marching 200 yards Kimball's line came to a wide canal, which could not be crossed without breaking the formation into column.

During the Federal delay at the canal the Washington artillery, stationed on Marye's hill, rained shot and shell upon the assailants. Beyond the canal Kimball's men reached a slight rise of ground, and as their heads showed above the crest the Confederate gunners redoubled their fire. But in spite of the screaming shells Kimball's line rushed on, battering down fences with clubbed rifles as they ran. The Confederates changed from shell to canister and cut great gaps in the daring ranks, but the survivors pushed forward until staggered by a volley of musketry fired into their faces.

The second obstacle to the march up the height was a sunken road and stone wall so well screened by the sodded terrace that from the Federal side it looked to be one smooth stretch of ground. Behind the wall lay Cobb's Georgia legion, holding its fire until the enemy came to close range. Half of Kimball's men had fallen, and the shattered remnants planted their colors in the ground and lay down to escape the withering fire from above.

Following on the heels of Kimball, the brigades of Andrews and Palmer met the same fire at the canal, the ridge and the stone wall and halted to lie in their tracks awaiting reinforcement. But the dead line of the Fredericksburg slaughter pen was not yet reached by the gallant soldiers who had been ordered to storm Marye's hill.

Hancock's division next took up the fight, unappalled by the fate of French's men. Zook's brigade dashed along across the canal and over the ridge, gathering up the prostrate soldiers of French's regiments to replace the men shot down on the march up the slope. Zook's line recoiled at the stone wall after getting within pistol range.

On the right of Zook marched the Irish brigade, cheering at every step, the green flag of Erin plainly visible to the ready gunners on the height. Meagher, the chief, rode at the head of the gallant Sixty-ninth by the side of Colonel Nugent. At the outskirts of the town that morning, as the line pressed a boxwood hedge, Meagher took a sprig of green and placed it in his cap. Every man in the ranks imitated the example, thus unconsciously putting on a badge by which the dead would be recognized as members of the Irish brigade, and in the end a good line of them lay among the foremost near the stone wall.

After the wearers of the green the brigade of Caldwell swept onward,

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

December 13, 1862

gathering to its ranks men from the other commands and pressing up to within twenty and even fifteen yards of the deadly wall. There was the dead line. Not that to cross it meant death; none crossed it. It was a line of dead at the point where the Confederate fire smote without sparing. There the dead of four brigades—Kimball's, Zook's, Meagher's and Caldwell's—were found at the time of burial. After the repulse of French and Hancock, Howard's division of the Second corps, Sykes' and Humphreys' of the Fifth and Sargis' of the Ninth charged over the same field, marking with their dead the limit of the Federal advance.

Hancock rode unscathed through that awful fire, but three of his aids were shot down in attempting to follow his fortunes. His division caught the sharpest fire, for by the time it appeared within range the Confederate marksmen had got the bearings. Lee and Longstreet were together on the height watching the Federal advance. Lee was alarmed at the persistence of the Federal masses, but Longstreet said, "If they put every man now on our side of the Potomac on that field, I'll kill them all."

Over 6,000 men fell in the attack on the stone wall. Hancock's division lost over 2,000. Zook's banner regiment that day was the Fifty-third Pennsylvania, mustering 283 men and 14 officers. The casualties of this regiment were 53 per cent. Of the officers 8 were shot down and 154 men killed or wounded.

The Sixty-ninth New York (Irish brigade) carried into battle 238 men and officers. Among the officers only 3 escaped out of 19 in action. The total loss was 128, about 53 per cent. In the same brigade the Eighty-eighth New York lost 50 per cent.

Caldwell's brigade, marching up after other brigades had been checked, met with the heaviest loss, evidence that the struggle in front of the stone wall grew fiercer every minute. The Confederates threw fresh muskets into the fray and concerned themselves little beyond keeping cool and firing low. The foe was at their mercy. Caldwell's Seventh New York, led by Colonel von Schneck, lost 10 officers killed and 8 wounded out of 25 in the fight and 240 men killed and wounded out of a muster that morning of 488 effectives. In this brigade the One Hundred and Forty-fifth Pennsylvania lost 45 per cent, the Fifth New Hampshire, led by the heroic Cross, 63 per cent and the Eighty-first Pennsylvania 67 per cent. The Seventh New York marched 1,700 yards under fire, but its loss was incurred chiefly in the twenty minutes it faced the stone wall.

The relative losses among officers under the Boer fire in South Africa were MEAGHER LEADING IN THE IRISH BRIGADE insignificant in comparison with the destruction of Hancock's battle leaders at Fredericksburg. In his command of eighteen regiments nineteen regimental commanders were shot down beside the colors. Caldwell's brigade carried into action 116 officers, and sixty-two were killed or wounded in less than an hour's fighting.

In over a score of regiments in the attack on the stone wall the death loss was exceptionally high. There was none of the excitement of a hotly contested battle to inspire those men, no dazzling prize balanced in the air to be seized by the bravest and the quickest. They had no chance for victory. Before them lay the stubborn heights, the gaping guns and the relentless enemy. Marching upon them, they marched into the jaws of death as freely and as grandly as ever men did in any clime or for any cause. Fredericksburg was one black disaster unrelieved by anything except the heroism of its victims. GEORGE L. KILMER.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS

EVERY man has more respect for a woman, even his own wife, if he knows she has financial ability and can make her own way and more, too, in the world without depending on anybody. The true way to settle the woman question is for women to become financially independent. Money talks. Thus, too, talks Mrs. Lucia E. Mount of Washington, whose husband says she is a shrewder and more successful investor of money than he himself is, which is saying much. But Mrs. Mount is living her own teaching. She might be merely a fashionable society woman. Instead of that she is studying out practically the subject of profitable business investments for women, with a view to helping her sex achieve the financial independence she preaches. Mrs. Mount's inclinations lead her to mining investments, in which thousands of women have swamped their all. But this business woman does not listen to the persuasions of honey-tongued mining promoters, half of whom ought to be hanged, if anybody ought, for the way in which they swindle women. Mrs. Mount herself goes in person to the exploited mine and examines it thoroughly before risking money on its chances of paying.

Mrs. Mount quotes with zest the example of Miss Mary Garrett, who gave a vast sum to Johns Hopkins university on condition that women should be admitted. And this shrewd benefactor added the proviso, "If ever in future there comes a time when it is deemed expedient to close Johns Hopkins against women, then this money shall be returned to the donor or her heirs." Johns Hopkins' doors will not be closed to women. Mrs. Mount declares it to be now the duty of rich women when they make large investments in any company or corporation to make the legal proviso that women shall always be on the directing board of such organizations.

Women are succeeding wonderfully in business enterprises of all kinds. They prosper as practical experts in the mining industry. That is a pleasant true story of the woman in Arizona who prospected her own claim. Her husband earned barely enough, working early and late, to support the large family, and the wife did the housework for them all. But day by day in the brief intervals she could snatch from cooking and baby tending she went to her claim near their cabin and worked with pick, shovel and drill, doing everything, even to the dynamite blasting, with her own hands. Not for months only, but years, this dauntless woman kept to her task till she thoroughly prospected her claim. Not long ago she struck a silver vein that assayed $3,000 to the ton. She still works her mine, but now as superintendent, with a squad of men doing the manual labor.

It is now time for women to begin to establish industrial enterprises of their own and cease so generally working under others for small wages. Where they branch out for themselves intelligently and cautiously they almost invariably succeed. In New York city Miss May Hopkins, though only twenty-two years old, is at the head of a highly prosperous educational agency, which she established and built up entirely herself. She provides teachers for places where they are needed.

There, too, is Mrs. Coggin of the Siskiyoun country, one of the leading lumber operators of the Pacific coast. Her husband, who began the enterprise, died before his plans were finished. His wife, who had been his comrade and adviser throughout, continued them and proved herself even more capable than he had been. At the coming St. Louis fair will be exhibited some marvelously beautiful art ironwork from the factory of Mrs. Annes-Lyle, ironmaster of Thornham, England. Plucky, persevering women win in business all along the line. MARY EDITH DAY.

FIRE CLOSES AN ILLINOIS MINE

Miner's Lamp Starts Serious Blaze in Upper Works at Breese.

Carlyle, Ill., Feb. 2.—Fire started by a miner's lamp partly destroyed the top works of the last mine in Breese. Papers hanging on the wall of a small room used by the man who has charge of the coal chutes were ignited by the lamp. The fire destroyed the chutes, but the main part of the structure was saved. A shut-down will be necessary. Engines of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad will cease taking coal at the mine for several weeks. The estimated loss is $6,000.

The cyanide plant and smelter have been treating about 1,000 tons of ore daily.

EN. GROSVENOR ENTERS DENIAL

SAYS DOCUMENT IS A FORGERY

Agents Ask Public to Buy the Volume, Representing That the Author is in Distress and in Need of Financial Assistance.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Political Washington is deeply interested in the controversy that has grown out of the publication of General Grosvenor's book, "The Book of the Presidents." When it was first reported that the book agents in order to facilitate sales were representing that the author was in distress and need of financial assistance, General Grosvenor denied that he was further connected with the publication company handling the work other than being its author, and that he was not interested financially or otherwise in the sale of the books. He declared that the company still owed him money for preparing the sketches of the different presidents.

Says It Is Forgery.
The publication of letters bearing the signature of the general, which on the plea of friendship sought subscribers for the book, has given the affair a sensational turn. General Grosvenor pronounced the signature a forgery. Whether there will be any legal action growing out of the case is a matter of conjecture, as the general remains silent on this point. When shown the papers containing the letters and also his denial General Grosvenor said:

"That's a forgery. It's a forgery on the face of it. Anyone who knows my signature knows that that is a forgery. I never wrote a letter of that character or of any character that could be used in that manner. I am preparing a statement of the case for the public."

ROAST MORGAN.

Financier Attends Dinner at Gridiron Club and Is Butt of Jokes.

Washington, Feb. 2.—During his stay in Washington Pierpont Morgan seemed to thoroughly enjoy himself. He attended the Gridiron dinner and showed that he could appreciate a joke at his own expense, although he was unmercifully roasted. A group of interviewers vainly sought to extract from Mr. Morgan his thoughts on the business problems confronting Wall street.

"Gentlemen," said he, "your business is getting and printing news, isn't it? And mine is trying to do things, isn't it?"

"Yes," assented the interviewers. "Well, suppose I gave you the news in advance to print about the things I may try to do. You would win and I would lose," he said, "any you would think me a dunce for letting you win."

Senator Hanna met Mr. Morgan in the lobby of the Arlington Hotel. Naturally they discussed the Gridiron club dinner.

"These newspaper boys are a jolly lot of fellows," said Mr. Morgan.

"Good fellows," exclaimed Senator Hanna enthusiastically. "Why, Morgan, you make the mistake of your life by playing the indifferent with them. They thump me occasionally and I thump them in return. I give them a story every time I can do so consistently, and they never abuse my confidence."

HOBSON RESIGNS.

Naval Constructor Is Said to Entertain Desire to Lecture.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Naval Constructor Richmond Pearson Hobson of Merrimack fame has sent his resignation to President Roosevelt through the secretary of the navy. Rear Admiral H. C. Taylor, chief of the bureau of navigation, has recommended that the resignation be accepted and Rear Admiral Bowles, the chief naval constructor, is credited with having taken the same action. Secretary Moody has not forwarded Mr. Hobson's letter to the president. The action of Mr. Hobson was the result of the failure of congress to pass the bill providing for his retirement and a recent order assigning him to duty on the Pacific coast. He has been engaged for a long time in trying to secure transfer to the retired list. Mr. Hobson is credited with an ambition to enter politics, but those who know him say his immediate object is to go upon the lecture platform to relate his experiences in the Spanish-American war.

JEFFERSON MEMORIAL.

Appeal Is Issued to Americans to Contribute Funds.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association, organized to erect at the national capital a memorial to the "author of the Declaration of Independence," through its president, Admiral Dewey, has issued an appeal to the American people for funds to carry out the object of the association. The appeal says that congress will be asked to aid the project, and that the association relies solely on the people, who are asked to contribute according to their needs. Every contributor will receive a certificate acknowledging his subscription and carrying with it membership in the association. The treasurer of the association is Jesse B. Wilson, president of the Lincoln National Bank. Vice presidents have been chosen for each state.

Rifles for Militiamen.
Washington, Feb. 2.—In accordance with the terms of the new militia law recently enacted by Congress the entire citizen soldiery of the country is to be supplied with the regular army service rifle. The state militia organizations aggregate approximately 115,000 men, nearly double the number in the regular army establishment. They will be furnished their new arms as rapidly as they can be manufactured by the national armory at Springfield, Mass. In addition to this the war department is installing a plant at the Rock Island arsenal for the manufacture of the service rifle.

NOME TO BE SUPPORT.

Action Does Away With Many Inconveniences to Passengers.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The action in making Nome a support of entry was taken after a thorough investigation of the whole subject by officials in Alaska and it is expected it will add materially to the prosperity of Nome and the whole territory. At present all vessels going to Nome are necessarily subject to many inconveniences and delays. Under the new arrangement vessels will enter and clear and duties will be paid at Nome the same as at all other ports of entry. During the last summer seventy-five vessels arrived at Nome from the United States, bringing 4,000 passengers. The production of gold last season was $6,000,000.

Punish Capt. Cushing.

The board which conducted the trial of Captain William H. Cushing of the revenue cutter service, on charges based upon a report submitted by the surveyor of customs of the port of San Francisco, has filed its report with the secretary of the treasury. The board decided that all of the charges were proved in part and recommended that Captain Cushing be placed on leave of absence on half pay for a period of six months and receive an official reprimand. This recommendation has been approved by the department.

Philippine Commerce.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Official returns of Philippine commerce for October, 1902, show the value of merchandise imported to have aggregated $2,273,692. Two-fifths of this amount is credited to food articles and is due to crop failures in the archipelago. The exports for October, 1902, were valued at $2,847,577. COAL STRIKE IS LOOKED FOR

WORK MAY CEASE ON APRIL 1

Mine Owners Agree That the Workers Should Be Given an Advance in Wages, but Contend That Their Demands are Excessive.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 2.—Very little hope of a satisfactory agreement is based upon the meeting of the scale committee of the miners and operators today to resume consideration of the demands of the miners for an increase of wages. Expressions of opinion indicate that the sessions will be protracted, and that if the miners insist on the demands already made there will be no agreement reached, which will mean a suspension of work on April 1.

Refuse to Yield.

Both sides seem determined and the operators say they will never yield to the present demands. Many of them do say, however, that the miners should have some increase this year and many believe that an increase of 10 per cent would be right.

W. S. Bogle, head of the Indiana operators, said that whatever increase the miners got, if they got any, would have to be borne by the consumer. He said that the only cost of coal is the labor it takes to produce it.

Would Add to Cost.

"Over 95 per cent of the cost of coal is labor," he said. "The statement that I made in the conference that if we granted the proposition of the miners just as they made it, demanding 12½ cents flat, the run of mine basis, the flat differential of 7 cents per ton and an increase of 30 cents for inside laborers and an increase in proportion to the advance of the mining rate, it would add 60 cents per ton to the cost to the consumer, is absolutely true."

Some Figures.

"These are the figures on it: A 12½ cent per ton increase flat on a run mine basis amounts to 21 cents on a screen basis. Then there is the dead work, including room turning and yardage, for which an advance of 30 per cent is asked, and the increase in proportion to the advance of the miners for the outside laborers, which is 25 per cent, makes a total increase for the laborers of 15 cents per ton. Then the increase demanded for machine mining of a differential of 7 cents is a 15-cent advance on machine-mined coal."

Consumer Must Pay.

"But suppose that not over half the coal mined is machine-mined, it will still be an advance of 6½ cents. Then the increased degradation of the coal by mining on a mine run basis will make an additional cost of lump-screened coal of from 15 to 20 cents per ton—on an average, we will say, 17½ cents."

"There you have 21 cents for the mining; 15 cents for the laborers, 6½ cents for the differential, and 17½ cents for the degradation of the coal, making in all 60 cents, and the consumer must pay every cent of it."

Baby
Weighed Only Five Pounds.
Restless, Cried Day and Night.
Dr. Miles' Nervine Did Wonders, Cured Her.

A little over two years ago I had a little, nervous baby who weighed only five pounds at birth. At first she was restless and cross and after she was four weeks old she cried day and night, and would not sleep without narcotics. She was so nervous that we did not dare to move when she did sleep a short time, as she would wake screaming as though she was going to have a fit. We called a doctor, he called it infantile colic; said he could relieve her, could not cure her. After a short time the effect of his medicine wore off and I was in despair. I tried all known home remedies and innumerable patent medicines. At last I gave her Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and she was cured. She has now a dozen bottles and would not be without it. I am now giving it to another baby and it has the same effect, immediate relief always.—Mrs. Vincent Zidek, Verona, N. D.

"Three years ago I was taken with nervous prostration, which brought on heart trouble, and my heart would palpitate at every little noise. I had smothering spells so that at times I would nearly sink away. I got one bottle each of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Remedies and I could feel good results from the first few doses. They have since effected a permanent cure. I recommend Dr. Miles' Remedies to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. G. C. James, Fairmont, Nebraska.

ICE BOATS RACE AT KOSHKONONG

Newville Boat Was the Winner in Saturday's Spirited Contest.

Tone Brown's ice boat carried off the honors and the cup, at the races held on Lake Koshkonong Saturday afternoon, the speedy Newville boat taking two out of the three heats necessary to win the cup. The Janesville boats appear among the "also ran" crowd and did not begin to keep up the reputation for fast sailing that has been given them. Mr. McKee says that there were several soft spots in the ice and his boat being much heavier than the rest cut through and retarded his speed. Brown's boat has had the reputation of being one of the fastest on the lake and was made the favorite by the experienced sailors.

Fair Ice
The ice was in fair condition and there was a good breeze which made the boats "go long some." The course was a triangle about ten miles in length, which with the numerous tacks made in working up against the wind, made the distance traveled by the boats about fifteen miles. It was a race against time, the conditions being that the boat winning two out of the three circuits of the course took the cup.

Fast Time
The first heat was won by Court Bliven's boat in 19 minutes, the next two going to Tone Brown in 16.41 and 16.13 respectively. The nine entries for the race and the order in which they finished were as follows:

Tone Brown, Newville.
Court Bliven, Edgerton.
Pete Bliven, Koshkonong.
George McKee, Janesville.
George Sherman, Newville.
Roy Saunders, Edgerton.
Roy Hopkins, Edgerton.
Frank Pierson, Janesville.
George Goldthorpe, Koshkonong Lake.

Best time: 16:13.

The Cup Won
The cup won on Saturday by Brown is a club fixture and can only be held for the season. Next Saturday, if the conditions are favorable there will be another race for a cup that will become the property of the winner of the race. Ice boat racing is growing in popularity in all parts of the country where it can be carried on and no doubt next season the fleet of ice boats on Koshkonong will be double what it is this winter and races on a more pretentious scale will be pulled off.

Madison is about to erect a building. Robert E. Knoff of the "Democrat," accompanied the party at the request of Mayor Gove, as reporter for the trip. Mr. Knoff is a Janesville boy.

Object To Rubbish: The residents of High street are making a vigorous kick on the Interurban road using their street for a dumping ground for the refuse that collects in their cars. They claim that the road makes a practice of stopping its cars on High street while the conductor sweeps out and that old papers, banana peels and other refuse is dumped into the street, giving it a very untidy appearance and causing considerable annoyance. In all probability the council will take some action in the matter at its meeting tonight.
